Intangible Cultural Heritage Safeguarding Efforts in Indonesia

In collaboration with Centre for Research and Development of Culture
In collaboration with Centre for Research and Development of Culture, Indonesia
The International Information and Networking Centre for Intangible Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region proposed by the Korean government was finally approved as a category 2 centre under the auspices of UNESCO at the 35th session of the UNESCO General Conference last October. Over the course of the next year, the Centre and the Korean government prepared for the establishment of the UNESCO category 2 centre which is intended to become a hub for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage in Asia and the Pacific region.

As a well intentioned objective for the future activities of this centre, ICHCAP initiated the 2009 Field Survey Project of the Intangible Cultural Heritage Safeguarding Efforts in the Asia-Pacific Region.

In 2010, ICHCAP worked in collaboration with institutions from seven countries which include: Bangladesh, Bhutan, Indonesia, Nepal, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, and Tajikistan to carry out the field surveys. The purpose of the field survey project was to obtain a grasp on the current situation of ICH safeguarding, along with specific details on each country's efforts in inventory making and relevant policies, laws, organisations, etc. The centre will continue this project over the next several years to cover all of the countries within the Asia-Pacific region.

The centre will serve Asia-Pacific Member States as an information and networking centre for the safeguarding of ICH. The final report from the project will serve as a resource that will help determine particular needs and provide direction for new cooperative projects for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage. It will also be used as a resource for states within the region to strengthen their understanding of intangible cultural heritage of other countries in the region.

Lastly, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the institutions and researchers who actively cooperated with ICHCAP on the field survey project.

Introduction

Asia and the Pacific region is an area rich with various elements of intangible cultural heritage. Intangible cultural heritage has been handed down from generation to generation and has contributed to the development of cultural diversity and the creativity of humanity. Intangible cultural heritage for social development is well recognised as it represents the evolution of historical traditions and the cultural identity of a society embodied in creative expression.

Over time, the form and substance of intangible cultural heritage has become vulnerable to deterioration. In particular, rapid social change and globalisation have made this situation even more pressing. Fortunately, there has recently been an increase in global awareness in relation to the value of intangible cultural heritage and its safeguarding.

In this regard, ICHCAP has created a survey study plan to collect all the necessary information related to current safeguarding systems for intangible cultural heritage in the region. ICHCAP has been preparing this survey since 2008, and 2010 is the second year of the implementation of this project.

ICHCAP has collected relevant data from reports, workshop books, meeting resolutions, internet databases, etc. While the information is valuable, in many cases, the data is neither accurate, nor up to date. This is the reason ICHCAP has prepared a new survey to accumulate more current pertinent data.

The field survey was carried out by respected researchers in each country. For this project, ICHCAP developed a questionnaire to guide the research teams conducting the field surveys in each country. The questionnaire encompassed topics pertaining to safeguarding the present system & policy; intangible cultural heritage inventory; information regarding relevant conferences, symposiums and workshops; national and local pending issues and urgent needs within the field of intangible cultural heritage safeguarding.

Lastly, the information and data may be open to the public and ICHCAP will share necessary data with other Member States to support the implementation of the most effective and appropriate practices for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage. We expect the project will assist in strengthening regional capacity and solidarity as well as international cooperation for the safeguarding of ICH in the region.
Field Survey Report
I . Safeguarding system & policy

1. National Law

A. Definition of intangible cultural heritage

Indonesia has ratified the 2003 UNESCO Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage. Accordingly, Indonesia has accepted the definition of Intangible Cultural Heritage mentioned in the Convention, namely: “the practices, representations, expressions, knowledge, skills – as well as the instruments, objects, artefacts and cultural spaces associated therewith – that communities, groups and, in some cases, individuals recognize as part of their cultural heritage. This intangible cultural heritage, transmitted from generation to generation, is constantly recreated by communities and groups in response to their environment, their interaction with nature and their history, and provides them with a sense of identity and continuity, thus promoting respect for cultural diversity and human creativity...consideration will be given solely to such intangible cultural heritage as is compatible with existing international human rights instruments, as well as with the requirements of mutual respect among communities, groups and individuals, and of sustainable development”.

B. Title of law

D. Amendments

There has been no amendment on these regulations yet.

E. Particular article(s) related to ICH

In general, it can be said that there has been no regulation yet directly mentioning the term intangible cultural heritage. Up to now, all of the regulations abovementioned implicitly categorize the intangible cultural heritage under terms of “cultural property”, “culture”, or “traditional cultural expressions”. However, there is a notion to establish a specific regulatory measure on intangible cultural heritage. A research activity concerning this issue is under consideration.

Increase in utilization of the results of research into traditional history.

Intangible cultural heritage may be said as economically less feasible to be seriously managed in a developing country for there are enormous problems that must be overcome in a short term period, such as poverty, physical infrastructure, health problems etc. Nevertheless, for the long term interests, and particularly to ensure a sustainable development goal, a priority should be put on the preservation and promotion of intangible cultural heritage. There may be two effective means to achieve this objective. First, school curriculum should add more space for intangible cultural heritage education. It will enable people to absorb the importance of their cultural values since early ages. A research has shown that the highest level of capacity to absorb values of a person is up to 10 years old. It means that cultural education is a critical issue in elementary school. Second, a rather costly but also very important is to encourage a development of “cultural funds” that would stimulate people to learn or develop intangible cultural heritage and to provide a reward for maestros or “living human treasures” to preserve, promote and develop intangible cultural heritage. Sources of the funds could be shared by companies through CSR (Corporate Social Responsibility) mechanism or government budget.
II. Intangible Cultural Heritage Inventory

1. National inventory

The activity of inventory of the cultural heritage of our nation had begun since the era of kingdoms and the colonial period, and has been carried on since Indonesia proclaimed its Independence on 17th August 1945, by various stakeholders, both within the government, non-governmental organizations, universities and private individuals.

Efforts have been made since 1976 to conduct a complete inventory of intangible cultural heritage through the Inventory and Documentation of Local Culture Project. The name of this inventory activity was later changed several times, among others, it was called the Integrated Culture Information System (SIKT), conceived by Prof. Dr. Edi Sedyawati (then Director-General of Culture), and the Culture Map conceived by Prof. Dr. Sri Hastanto, S. Kar (then Director-General of Cultural Values, Arts and Film). However, these inventories experienced several impediments..

Since September 2009, Indonesia has a system of inventory of intangible cultural heritage, coordinated by the Directorate General for Cultural Values, Arts and Film of the Ministry of Culture and Tourism. The inventory programme also involves Technical Executive Units called Offices for Safeguarding of History and Traditional Values. The inventory system has been drafted in the form of a book entitled "Practical Handbook for Inventory of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Indonesia".

Inventory of intangible cultural heritage is based on a form containing 17 data fields which contain information regarding each element of cultural heritage inventoried. This form is compliant with the 2003 Convention and contains a number code and 17 data fields:

- Number Code
- Name of Element
- Alternative Name(s) of Element
- Name of Person Reporting
- Place and Date of Report
- Agreement of the Community, Group or Individual to the Inventory Entry
- Brief History of the Element
• Names and Contact Details of Communities, Groups, or Individuals Responsible for the ICH Element
• Names and Contact Details of Teachers or Maestros of the Element
• Geographical Location of the Element
• ICH Domain(s) of the Element
• Brief Current Description of the Element
• Present Condition of Safeguarding of the Element
• Safeguarding Efforts To Date
• Suggestions from Teachers, Maestros or Community Members for Safeguarding Measures
• Documentation, References
• Whether information about the element may be made available freely, or if there are any traditional restrictions regarding access to the element, which need to be respected.

The inventory system is planned to be filled through offline and online systems. The offline system is conducted manually by filling in all the data fields in the intangible cultural heritage inventory form abovementioned. This form is written in MS Word format, to be filled in by the person making the report, and is then handed in to the Secretariat for Inventory of Intangible Cultural Heritage at the Directorate General for Cultural Values, Arts and Film. The one line system is planned to be entered directly through the website www.budaya-indonesia.org.

“Practical Handbook for Inventory of Intangible Cultural Heritage of Indonesia” was published in September 2009. From that time, the work of inventory of intangible cultural heritage has been based upon the form contained in this handbook. To conduct this work, the Directorate General of Cultural Values, Arts and Film has formed a Working Group and drawn up a working plan. In August 2010, the Directorate General of Cultural Values, Arts and Film has issued Decree of the Director General of Cultural Values, Arts and Film No.424/SK/NBSF/VIII/10 regarding Organization of Inventory of Intangible Cultural Heritage to Working Units and Technical Executive Units within the scope of the Directorate General of Cultural Values, Arts and Film in the Matter of Safeguarding the Cultural Heritage of Indonesia. Technical Executive Units called Offices for Preservation of History and Traditional Values are located in the following province.
Broadly speaking, the working plan of the activity of inventory of intangible cultural heritage is as follows:

- After the work of inventory under this new system has become operational in 2010, the goal is to inventory as many of elements of intangible cultural heritage as possible, spread throughout the 33 provinces of Indonesia.
- Assistance activities in various areas, with the purpose of helping stakeholders in various areas to fill in the form of inventory of intangible cultural heritage.
- The process of inventory involves all the stakeholders; namely, local governments, NGOs, communities, social groups and individuals to report on elements of intangible cultural heritage. Thus the work of inventory is not only the responsibility of the government.
- Collaboration with the administrator of the website www.budaya-indonesia.org in order to involve communities, social groups and individuals in inventory of intangible cultural heritage.
- A verification team will be formed of experts in the various fields which are the domains of inventory of intangible cultural heritage. This team has the duty of avoiding legal and social problems which might arise, and also to examine the substance of the inventory data.
- The issuing of inventory numbers to each element of intangible cultural heritage reported. This work is yet to be completed.
- Inventory data compiled on elements of intangible cultural heritage will be classified according to who will use the data; namely, UNESCO, types of documents recorded as intangible cultural heritage of Indonesia; the government, as a basis for planning and decision making, researchers, as a source for research, development of science, and as teaching material from elementary to tertiary levels.

D. Designated heritage

1) Categories
- oral traditions and expressions, including languages as vehicles for ICH, folk stories, ancient manuscripts, traditional games;
- performing arts, including visual arts, theater, vocal arts, music and film;
- social customs and traditions, rites and festivals, including traditional economic systems, systems of social organization, traditional ceremonies;

- Respecting customs regulating access to certain parts of ICH, especially sacred and secret knowledge and skill.
- Inventory of elements of cultural heritage should be general and concise. For specific matters, interested parties will be invited to contact the communities/organizations/associations/institutions/ paguyuban associations/ social groups or individuals having the intellectual property rights regarding the respective elements of intangible cultural heritage.

- Web-based databases of Indonesian intangible cultural heritage should use satisfactory data security systems such as firewall, antispam and antivirus.
2. Non-governmental inventory

At the present moment, there do exist many inventories of intangible cultural heritage which have been compiled by various stakeholders, both manually as well as online, including inventories compiled by:

- Government ministries;
- Provincial and district municipal governments;
- Universities, particularly the Arts Universities in Surakarta, Yogyakarta, Bandung and Denpasar, Bali;
- Community organizations and NGOs;
- Private Individuals.

To give details of all these inventories in a country as vast and diverse as Indonesia would take many years of research and would be beyond the scope of this report. Therefore, we will just give some a few examples of such inventories. It is the intention of the Inventory of Intangible Cultural Heritage of Indonesia project to establish meta-data links with some of these inventories.

One good example of such an inventory is the Indonesian Wayang Database Centre www.wayang-indonesia.com established and maintained by the Indonesian National Wayang Secretariat (SENA WANGI).

2. Intangible cultural heritage preservation associations

Indonesia has 17,508 islands, 500 ethnic groups and 746 languages (besides the national language, Bahasa Indonesia), and many thousands of elements of intangible cultural heritage. Many intangible cultural heritage preservation associations exist. For example, there are “sanggar” or informal schools where masters of various types of intangible cultural heritage transmit their skills to students. There are also “paguyuban” or associations of lovers of particular kinds of intangible cultural heritage. Some of these associations are legal entities, but many are not yet legal entities, but are informal in nature. Some of these organizations are entirely oral in nature, and do not possess the capacity to interact on an international or even national level. They are nevertheless important for safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage. To list all of these associations in a country as vast and diverse as Indonesia would be a mammoth project which would take many years of research. To compile such a list would therefore be beyond the scope of this report. Therefore, we will just list a few samples of such intangible cultural heritage preservation associations.

V. The Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity

1. Indonesian Wayang Puppet Theatre

   A. local name: Wayang Indonesia

   B. Year of inscription
      - Proclaimed a Masterpiece of the Oral and Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in 2003
      - Inscribed on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in November 2009

   C. Community involvement
      Wayang puppeteers, musicians, singers, craftspersons and experts were involved in compiling the nomination file, and subsequently in executing the Action Plan for safeguarding wayang. In particular, five styles of wayang puppetry were chosen among the more than 60 styles, as objects for research for compiling the nomination file; namely:

      - Javanese Wayang Kulit shadow puppetry
      - Wayang Golek Sunda, the wooden three dimensional puppetry of West Java
      - Wayang Bali
      - Wayang Palembang of South Sumatra Province (endangered)
      - Wayang Banjar of South Kalimantan Province (fading out)

   D. Preservation association: members
      There are two main associations associated with wayang
      - The Indonesian National Wayang Secretariat (SENA WANGI), a policy making body
      - The Indonesian Dalang Union (PEPADI), a professional association of wayang puppeteers, musicians, singers, wayang craftspersons, experts and lovers of wayang. PEPADI has around 5000 members, and 23 Provincial Commissariats.
E. Practitioners
Practitioners of wayang consist of dalangs (puppeteers), karawitan musicians (accompaniment of wayang performances), singers (pesinden, female vocalists and wirosawa, male vocalists, wayang craftspersons, wayang experts and lovers of wayang.

F. Relevant events
Wayang performances are staged from village level, up to national level. There are district, provincial and national wayang festivals from time to time. A notable event which has recently become an annual event is the Children’s Wayang Week Festival, which stages performances of child puppeteers from many provinces. In 2009, this Festival was opened by the Vice President of Indonesia.

G. Explanation: abstract
Renowned for its elaborate puppets and complex musical styles, this ancient form of storytelling originated on the Indonesian island of Java. For ten centuries wayang flourished at the royal courts of Java and Bali as well as in rural areas. Wayang has spread to other islands (Lombok, Madura, Sumatra and Borneo) where various local performance styles and musical accompaniments have developed. While these carefully handcrafted puppets vary in size, shape and style, two principal types prevail: the three-dimensional wooden puppet (wayang klitik or golèk) and the flat leather shadow puppet (wayang kulit) projected in front of a screen lit from behind. Both types are characterized by costumes, facial features and articulated body parts. The master puppeteer (dalang) manipulates the swivelling arms by means of slender sticks attached to the puppets. Singers and musicians play complex melodies on bronze instruments and gamelan drums. In the past, puppeteers were regarded as cultivated literary experts who transmitted moral and aesthetic values through their art. The words and actions of comic characters representing the “ordinary person” have provided a vehicle for criticizing sensitive social and political issues, and it is believed that this special role may have contributed to wayang's survival over the centuries. Wayang stories borrow characters from indigenous myths, Indian epics and heroes from Persian tales. The repertory and performance techniques were transmitted orally within the families of puppeteers, musicians and puppet-makers. Master puppeteers are expected to memorize a vast repertory of stories and to recite ancient narrative passages and poetic songs in a witty and creative manner. The Wayang Puppet Theatre still enjoys great popularity. However, to compete successfully with modern forms of pastimes such as video, television or karaoke, performers tend to accentuate comic scenes at the expense of the story line and to replace musical accompaniment with pop tunes, leading to the loss of some characteristic features.
H. Information resource
- Interviewee: Gaura Mancacaritadipura, Dalang Puppeteer and culture expert, Age 57 years, male
- date & venue: 26th September 2010, Jakarta

I. Safeguarding projects
An Action Plan for Safeguarding the Indonesian Wayang Puppet Theatre in collaboration with UNESCO and funded by UNESCO through Funds in Trust from the government of Japan was conducted from 2005-2007. The project involved preparation of teaching materials in the form of teaching manuals and audio visual materials for many styles of wayang. Assistance was given to 15 sanggars (traditional schools of wayang puppetry) as a pilot project. Significant was the fact that the project was able to save and revitalize two styles of wayang (Wayang Palembang from South Sumatra Province) and Wayang Banjar from South Kalimantan Province) which at the time had been very close to extinction. While this project encompasses many activities, such as field research, documentation and a publication on the Wayang, its most important component is an in-depth training programme. Pilot projects centred on five different kinds of Wayang will be launched in a total of ten existing and new sanggars (informal Wayang schools), with a view to educating select students over a three-year period. The project aims to enable more effective transmission from master artists to young artists of the knowledge and skills required for the performance of Wayang theatre. An inventory of sanggars and Wayang practitioners as well as audio-visual educational kits and guidebooks on various forms of Wayang will enhance the general public's appreciation for this tradition.

J. Survey study project carried out by scholars
The research project for nomination of Indonesian Wayang Puppet Theatre for proclamation as a Masterpiece of the Oral and Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity was conducted by the Indonesian National Wayang Secretariat (SENA WANGI) in 2002

K. Awards received
Proclaimed a Masterpiece of the Oral and Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity by UNESCO in 2002
Inscribed on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in November 2008

L. Safeguarding measures
Action Plan executed 2005-2007, in collaboration with UNESCO, funded by the Japanese government “funds in trust” programme through the UNESCO Secretariat. SENA WANGI also maintains the Indonesian Wayang Database Centre www.wayang-indonesia.com
M. Community involvement

The wayang community have been involved in the work of safeguarding wayang through the Indonesian Dalangs Union (PEPADI) which is a professional association of dalang puppeteers, musicians, wayang craftspersons, singers, experts and others who are involved with wayang. PEPADI has 5000 members, and 23 Provincial Commisariats.
2. Indonesian Kris

A. Year of inscription
   Proclaimed a Masterpiece of the Oral and Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in 2006
   Inscribed on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in October 2009

B. Practitioner
   Master kris makers (empu), makers of sheath and accessories, collectors of kris, paguyuban associations of kris lovers.

C. Relevant events
   Kris exhibitions. Kris seminars

D. Explanation: abstract
   The kris or keris is a distinctive, asymmetrical dagger from Indonesia. Both weapon and spiritual object, the kris is considered to possess magical powers. The earliest known kris go back to the tenth century and most probably spread from the island of Java throughout South-East Asia. For the past century, Kris is no longer used as a weapon. It presently has the attributes of a tradition, social function, art, philosophy and mystique. Kris blades are usually narrow with a wide, asymmetrical base. The sheath is often made from wood, though examples from ivory, even gold, abound. A kris’ aesthetic value covers the dhapur (the form and design of the blade, with some 40 variants), the pamor (the pattern of metal alloy decoration on the blade, with approximately 120 variants), and tangguh referring to the age and origin of a kris. A bladesmith, or empu, makes the blade by forging together layers of different iron ores, steel and meteorite nickel. In high quality kris blades, the metal is folded dozens or hundreds of times and handled with the utmost precision. Empus are highly respected craftsmen with additional knowledge in literature, history and occult sciences.
   Kris were worn everyday and at special ceremonies, and heirloom blades are handed down through successive generations. Both men and women wear them. A rich spirituality and mythology developed around this dagger. Kris are used for display, as talismans with magical powers, weapons, sanctified heirlooms, auxiliary equipment for court soldiers, accessories for ceremonial dress, an indicator of social status, a symbol of heroism, etc.
   Over the past three decades, kris have lost some of their prominent social and spiritual meaning in society. Although active and honoured empus who produce high-quality kris in the traditional way can still be found on many islands, their number is dramatically decreasing, and it is more difficult for them to find people to whom they can transmit their skills.
E. Safeguarding projects
An Action Plan was formulated from input from community members as part of the nomination file. Some of the elements of this action plan have been carried out by the National Kris Secretariat, and by paguyuban association of kris lovers, in a self-funded way.

F. Survey study project carried out by scholars
Research for compilation of the nomination file for Indonesian Kris was conducted by a team chaired by Haryono Haryoguritno of Damartaji Foundation from May to October 2004. Since then further studies have been conducted by the Indonesian National Kris Secretariat. Studies on Kris have also been conducted by the Kris Studies Programme at ISI Surakarta (Arts University), coordinated by Mr. Basuki Teguh Yuwono, as part of a plan to publish a Krsna Encyclopedia.

G. Awards received
Proclaimed a Masterpiece of the Oral and Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in 2006
Inscribed on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in October 2009.

H. Safeguarding measures
An Action Plan for safeguarding the intangible cultural heritage of Indonesian Kris was prepared as part of the nomination file. Since then, parts of this plan have been carried out by the Indonesian National Kris Secretariat and by paguyuban associations of kris enthusiasts.

I. Community involvement
43 community members, mainly from paguyuban associations of kris enthusiasts, were interviewed for the preparation of the nomination file.
3. Indonesian Batik

A. History, background

Traditional handcrafted textile rich in intangible cultural values, passed down for generations in Java and elsewhere since early 19th Century (Ref. Siksakanda, 1517AD), more widely since mid-1980s, made by applying dots and lines of hot wax to cloth using a copper pen-like instrument (canthing tulis), or copper stamps (canthing cap), as a resist to hand-dyeing later removed by boiling and/or scraping, repeating the process for each colour.

Batik patterns and motifs possess deep symbolism related to social status, local community, nature, history and cultural heritage. Expectant mothers wear batik; babies are carried in batik slings and touch batik with their feet when they first touch the ground; brides, marriage couples and family members wear batik; even corpses are covered with batik: all with appropriate patterns and motifs. Traditional dress includes batik. Batiks are collected and passed down as family heirlooms, each being a work of art with its own story. Batik craftspersons would fast and pray before making batik while meditating accompanied by traditional songs. It takes several days to make a hand-stamped batik, and at least 1 month to 1 year to complete a hand-drawn batik.

B. Area

The batik community is large, spread over 18 Provinces (Map1.d). We sought participation of and collected data from communities in areas having significant concentrations of batik culture: DKI Jakarta, Cirebon, Madura, Pekalongan, Surakarta, Yogyakarta, and elsewhere from culture experts and written sources.

C. Year of inscription: 2009

D. Community involvement

Batik community members were involved in the nomination process and safeguarding action plan in the following ways:

- Including members of the batik community in the Team appointed for compiling the nomination file;
- Inviting elements from the batik community to the meetings of the Team.
- Field research among the batik communities in the areas of Cirebon, Jakarta, Madura, Pekalongan, Surakarta and Yogyakarta, and input from batik experts regarding batik culture in other areas.
- Representatives of elements of the batik community from various areas have participated in Seminar I (16th July 2008 in Jakarta), Seminar II (27th July in Pekalongan), Seminar III in the Yogyakarta Royal Palace, and Seminar IV (4th August 2008 in Jakarta). During these seminars, the nomination file was presented and discussed at length, and the community members present gave their input and additions for improvement of the nomination file.
• The above batik community representatives were requested if they so agreed to sign statements of their agreement to the corrected version of the nomination file, before it is submitted to the Government for submission to UNESCO (See 5.b below).

• Plans for safeguarding batik culture already carried out (Form Item 4.a) and which are planned to be carried out in the future (Form Item 4 (b) (Criterion R.3; Article 18 of Convention Operational Guidelines) all involve batik community members in their execution.

• One of the plans for preservation of batik culture is the suggestion by the batik community to establish an Indonesian Batik Community Forum (See 4.c above) This Forum was declared on 22nd August 2008 in Jakarta.

• Interviews with culture experts from 23 of the 33 Provinces of Indonesia at Beautiful Indonesia in Miniature Park in Jakarta were conducted on 9th and 10th August 2008. The respondents were asked for information on batik culture in their respective provinces, and their agreement to the nomination of Indonesia Batik to UNESCO was requested. All the experts interviewed (23/23) stated their agreement to the nomination.

I. Explanation: abstract
The techniques, symbolism and culture surrounding hand-dyed cotton and silk cloth known as Indonesian Batik permeate the lives of Indonesians from beginning to end: infants are carried in batik slings decorated with symbols designed to bring the child luck, and the dead are shrouded in funerary batik. Clothes with everyday designs are worn regularly in business and academic settings, while special varieties are incorporated into celebrations of marriage and pregnancy and into puppet Theatre and other art forms. The garments even play the central role in certain rituals, such as the ceremonial casting of royal batik into a volcano. Batik is dyed by proud craftspeople who draw designs on fabric using dots and lines of hot wax, which resists vegetable and other dyes and therefore allows the artisan to colour selectively by soaking the cloth in one colour, removing the wax with boiling water and repeating if multiple colours are desired. The wide diversity of patterns reflects a variety of influences, ranging from Arabic calligraphy, European bouquets and Chinese phoenixes to Japanese cherry blossoms and Indian or Persian peacocks. Often handed down within families for generations, the craft of batik is intertwined with the cultural identity of the Indonesian people and, through the symbolic meanings of its colours and designs, expresses their creativity and spirituality.

A. Indonesian Angklung

1) local name, if any

2) history, background
   The culture of angklung has existed for many centuries in Indonesia, particularly in the island of Java, and especially in the area now known as West Java and Banten Provinces. Negarakertagama dated 1359 (Pupuh L1:7) mentions the use of angklung as an entertainment at royal receptions: when King Hayam Wuruk visited the area now known as East Java, he was welcomed by angklung played by the people-Sultan Agung (17th. Century) liked to listen to angklung music played by musicians from Bali, in his palace in Banten. Angklung was banned during the colonial period, as it was believed that it might arouse the spirit of the people to revolt against colonial oppression. Angklung is an original, simple bamboo musical instrument of Indonesia known since the 11th Century. Angklung consists of 2-4 tubes of special black bamboo suspended in a white bamboo frame bound with ratan chord. The tubes are carefully whittled and cut by a master craftsperson to sound certain notes when the bamboo frame is shaken or tapped. Each angklung produces a single note or chord. Thus many players each holding a single instrument must collaborate together to play melodies. This develops teamwork, mutual respect (learning to live together), discipline, and artistic sense, even among players from different communities or nationalities. Traditional angklungs use pentatonic scale, while modern/Padaeng angklungs use diatonic scale. Angklung is closely related with traditional customs, arts and cultural identity in West Java and Banten Provinces and elsewhere. Many philosophical values are associated with the form of the instruments. Traditional angklungs are played during ceremonies, eg. rice planting time with the hope of a bountiful harvest, harvest time, circumcision, etc. Traditional angklung culture is transmitted from parents to children, or through non-formal education. Now modern Angklung Padaeng is taught in educational institutions from kindergarten to university level, and is proven to have a positive effect as abovementioned.

3) Area
   The angklung community is spread especially in West Java and Banten Provinces, and also in the provinces of Central Java, DI Yogyakarta, East
Java, Bali, NTT, NTB, DKI Jakarta, Nangroe Aceh Darussalam, North Sumatra, South Sumatra, Riau and Riau Islands (14 Provinces).

I. Abstract
The Saman dance is cultural heritage of the Gayo people traceable to the 13th Century, developed later by Syeh Saman incorporating religious messages. Saman is performed by boys and young men, always in odd numbers, sitting on their heels or kneeling in tight rows. The players wear black costumes embroidered with colourful Gayo motifs, symbolizing nature and noble values. The trainer or leader, called penangkat sits in the middle of the line and leads singing of verses containing messages about tradition, development, religion, advice, sarcasm, humor and even romance. Players clap their hands, slap their chests, thighs and the ground, click their fingers, sway and twist their bodies and heads forward and backward, left and right, synchronizing with the rhythm, sometimes slow, sometimes fast and energetic, in unison or with alternate dancers making opposite moves. Saman movements symbolize nature, the environment, and daily lives of Gayo people. Villages invite each other for Saman competitions to build friendly relationships. Saman is performed to celebrate national and religious holidays, and is a game among village children, who learn it informally. The frequency of Saman performances and transmission are decreasing, despite community and government efforts. Therefore safeguarding is urgently needed.

1. Education and Training in Indonesian Batik Cultural Heritage for Elementary, Junior, Senior, Vocational and Polytechnic Students in Collaboration with the Batik Museum in Pekalongan

A. Local name
   Pendidikan dan Latihan dalam Warisan Budaya Batik Indonesia untuk Siswa SD, SMP, SMA, SMK dan Politeknik dalam Kerjasama dengan Museum Batik di Pekalongan

B. History, background
   Indonesian Batik is a traditional hand-crafted textile rich in intangible cultural values, passed down for generations in Java and elsewhere since early 19th Century, made by applying dots and lines in hot wax to cloth using a canthing tulis pen or canthing cap stamp, as a dye-resist. Patterns and motifs have deep symbolism related to social status, local community, nature, history and cultural heritage. Indonesian Batik is nominated for the UNESCO Representative List.
   The batik community noted the younger generation's interest in batik is waning, and felt the need to increase efforts to transmit batik cultural heritage to guarantee its safeguarding.
   The program is collaboration between the Batik Museum and elementary, junior, senior, vocational school and polytechnic, to include education in batik cultural values and traditional handcraft in curricula as local content or subject. The project has gone on for 3 years, and continues to expand to Pekalongan District and neighbouring Batang, Pemalang and Tegal districts.

5) Explanation: abstract
Indonesian Batik is a traditional hand-crafted dye-resist textile rich in intangible cultural values, passed down for generations in Java and elsewhere since the early nineteenth century. The batik community noted the younger generation’s interest in batik was waning, and felt the need to increase efforts to transmit batik cultural heritage to guarantee its safeguarding. The main objective of the programme is therefore to increase the awareness and appreciation of the cultural heritage of Indonesian batik, including its history, cultural values and traditional skills, among the younger generation. Law No. 20 of 2003 makes it possible to include batik culture in curricula as ‘local content’ in areas having batik cultural heritage, such as Pekalongan City. The Batik Museum initiated the programme in 2005, in close cooperation with the educational authorities of the city, and it continues to expand to Pekalongan District and neighbouring Batang, Pemalang and Tegal districts. This programme, whose effectiveness has been demonstrated through evaluations, constitutes an effort to (a) safeguard intangible cultural heritage by ensuring its transmission to the next generation, (b) ensure respect for the intangible cultural heritage by giving Indonesian Batik a respectable place as local content within the curricula of various strata of formal education, beginning from elementary, junior, senior and vocational schools up to polytechnic, and (c) raise awareness of the importance of intangible cultural heritage at the local, national and hopefully international level.

6) Survey study project carried out by scholars
Research for the nomination file was conducted by a team coordinated by the Batik Museum Institute in 2009.

7) Awards received
Inscribed on the Register of Practices which best reflect the principles and objectives of the Convention in Oktober 2009.

8) Safeguarding measures/programme
Firstly, the staff at the Batik Museum were trained to give instructions in batik cultural values and traditional handcrafts. Teaching materials were prepared. The level of instruction and training was geared to the educational level of the participants. The programme used the exhibition halls of the museum for lessons on theory, history and cultural values of batik, while the museum workshop was used for the practical workshops in the traditional handicrafts of hand drawn and hand stamped batik. Sponsors were sought among batik producers, to minimize the cost of the training for the students. This helped participants who were not well off economically. Support of the City Government was sought. Invitation proposals were circulated to educational institutions in Pekalongan City. The training programme commenced in 2006, initially at the Batik Museum.

Later on, as the programme developed, school teachers were trained through a programme of “training of trainers”, so that batik education and training could be carried out at educational institutions having facilities, while the evaluation testing would be done at the Batik Museum. The batik education and training retained the original oral system of transmission. Some batik producers have also begun holding workshops for students, using the pattern established by this programme.

The theory of cultural values and practice of traditional handicrafts of hand drawn and hand stamped batik have been inserted into school curricula at various levels as “local content”. Some schools have also included material related to batik into other subjects. For example, language lessons have used written articles related to batik; biology and chemistry lessons have discussed the natural colours used for making batik, etc.

Students hear explanations from batik experts regarding batik cultural values, eg. history of batik, symbolism of various motifs and patterns, significance of the special motifs and patterns of various areas, and also training in the stages in the process of maming batik, which they can then practice themselves, beginning from making natural colours, making patterns, drawing and stamping batik, hand-dyeing, boiling to remove the wax, up till the finished batik. Students can take home the batik which they have made themselves, to show to their parents and friends, or even to be exhibited or sold.

Teaching batik intangible cultural heritage as “local content” within the format of formal lessons as school is an innovative approach, because until now, education and training in intangible cultural heritage has gone on in an informal way, for example in “sanggars” or informal schools, or in homes, or in batik workshops. Several headmasters reported that this programme has helped very much to increase the awareness of students regarding the cultural values and traditional handcraft of batik. The participating schools have continued to send their students to join in the programme every year.

The following were set as the indicators of the success of the programme:
Number of students participating.
Number of teachers trained through training of trainers.
Results of evaluation tests given at the end of training.
Results of interview with participants.

IX. Pending issues & urgent needs regarding the safeguarding of ICH

Q1. Is any of the intangible cultural heritage in your country in danger of disappearance or transformation? (Please include name of the heritage, location, problems encountered, etc.)

There is no doubt that there are many elements of intangible cultural heritage in Indonesia which are in danger of disappearance or transformation. It is hoped that by conducting of inventory of intangible cultural heritage according to the new system developed by the Directorate General of Cultural Values, Arts and Film, information will be gathered as to which elements of intangible cultural heritage are developing, which are maintaining, which are fading out, which are threatened with extinction, and which are already extinct. In this way, stakeholders may be alerted to take the necessary action to safeguard these elements, by involving the community in action plans.

Two examples are Wayang Palembang and Wayang Banjar, which in 2002 were identified as being in danger of extinction (only one Wayang Palembang puppeteer was alive at the time) and fading out. Action plans were executed from 2005-2007, and these two styles of wayang puppetry could be brought back from the brink of extinction.

The Saman Dance of Aceh is another example of an element detected to be in danger of disappearance or transformation. It is for this reason that Saman has been nominated to UNESCO for the Urgent Safeguarding List, and a four-year Action Plan has been drawn up to safeguard and develop Saman.

Q2. What are the reasons the heritage is in danger and what type of safeguarding measures have been taken? Please be specific.

The rapid advance of globalization and modernization. The rapid spread of television and electronic media as the preferred forms of entertainment, as compared to participation in live activities of intangible cultural heritage.
The younger generation are busy with compulsory education, and therefore have less or no time to imbibe the skills and knowledge of varieties of intangible cultural heritage from the older generation.

The central and local governments have according to their limited capacities and resources made efforts to safeguard intangible cultural heritage, for example, by including heritage in school curricula as local content or extracurricular activities, by presenting intangible cultural heritage at celebrations held by the central and local governments, by holding festivals (e.g. Sasando Festival in Pulau Rote), and by supporting efforts by NGOs to safeguard intangible cultural heritage. Safeguarding measures have to be tailored according to the particular situation and condition of each respective element of intangible cultural heritage.

Q3. What are the pending issues for safeguarding ICH in your country that you have found through interviews and the field survey?

1. Although Indonesia has become a State Party to the 2003 Convention on Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage since 15th January 2008, the general public are not yet much aware of the 2003 Convention, and thus the involvement of communities in inventory of intangible cultural heritage and other safeguarding activities is not yet at an optimum level.

   Until now, the government, through the Directorate General for Cultural Values, Arts and Film have been conducting socialization of intangible cultural heritage in various parts of Indonesia, in collaboration with the culture and tourism services in all provinces.

   This socialization still has not sufficiently involved communities, social groups and individuals, and thus community involvement in inventory or intangible cultural heritage inventory of intangible cultural heritage still faces a major impediment.

2. Although communication and information technology is available in carrying out inventory of intangible cultural heritage, yet many communities are not yet familiar with this technology, and thus manual inventory is still required.

   Development of information and communication technology is advancing rapidly. For example, the development of the web from web 1.0 (one way) to web 2.0 like the interactive technology used by Wikipedia. In subsequent developments, limited communities have developed known as social networking, developed from personal networks which in time have broadened to become social networks.
The obstacle faced is that such an expanded social network has not yet been developed, to the extent that every individual can play a role in inventory of intangible cultural heritage.

3. The method of inventory of intangible cultural heritage through information and communication technology still needs socialization, so that communities, social groups and individuals can participate in inventory of intangible cultural heritage through the website www.budaya-indonesia.org.

The Directorate General for Cultural Values, Arts and Film have carried out collaboration with the organizers of the web 2.0 website www.budaya-indonesia.org. This collaboration is not only in the matter of inventory of intangible cultural heritage, but also for developing their website to become a publication media for intangible cultural heritage in Indonesia.

In the future, www.budaya-indonesia.org needs to be expanded by involving social networks such as blogs, twitter, panoramio, etc. so that even more community members, social groups and individuals can be involved in the work of inventory of intangible cultural heritage.

Q4. What kind of problems and difficulties were encountered during the safeguarding projects?

Limitations in funding for safeguarding projects
Difficulties in motivating people to be engaged in safeguarding projects on an ongoing basis
Lack of teaching materials for intangible cultural heritage.

Q5. What future plans are there for the safeguarding of ICH (programme information)?

At present, the concentration is on inventory of intangible cultural heritage, as the basis for all safeguarding activities. The new system of inventory also includes information regarding who are the main community members involved, what is the present status of the element, what efforts have been made to safeguard, what activities are suggested by the communities themselves to safeguard the element, etc. The Minister of Culture and Tourism has also signed a joint decree with the Minister of Home Affairs, regarding duties of local government in safeguarding intangible cultural heritage.
Q6. What type of contribution and cooperation from international society is needed for the safeguarding of ICH in your country?

Information sharing workshops on a subregional and regional level are a good way for stimulating cooperation for safeguarding intangible cultural heritage. Such workshops serve to increase local awareness of the importance of intangible cultural heritage, and also to increase practical capacity of the participants to engage in safeguarding activities of intangible cultural heritage.

For example, Indonesia hosted one such workshop on 19th - 20th August 2009 (described above) with participation from Republic of Korea, People’s Republic of China, Japan and Brunei Darussalam.

Another recent example is an information sharing workshop on safeguarding intangible cultural heritage conducted between Indonesia and Vietnam in Hanoi on 6th September 2010.

Q7. What role do you expect ICHCAP to play in the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage in the region in terms of programmes, projects, etc.?

ICHCAP could facilitate information sharing workshops and training workshops in safeguarding intangible cultural heritage, as it has been doing already.

Q8. What should be considered to encourage or to ensure active involvement from the community in safeguarding intangible cultural heritage?

Workshops need to be conducted on a local level to increase the practical capacities of communities for safeguarding intangible cultural heritage.

Q9. Suggestions to ICHCAP for Consideration to Benefit Member States of UNESCO

ICHCAP is publishing an excellent periodical on ICH titled ICH Courier. We suggest that this periodical should be circulated as widely as possible throughout the Asia-Pacific Region and even beyond, both in printed as well as in electronic forms (by email). For this purpose, ICHCAP could ask the UNESCO Member States in Asia-Pacific Region for names, addresses and email addresses of important people, both government and non-government, who they feel should receive ICH Courier on a regular basis.

ICHCAP should hold further seminars and workshop regarding ICH as it has already done several time in Korea and in other countries, to raise awareness and build capacity for safeguarding ICH. Besides holding these events in Korea, ICHCAP might consider collaborating with UNESCO Member States to also hold workshops in other countries. The Workshops which Indonesian delegates have participated in so far have been very well organized, and have served their purposes. The information from these workshops has been then disseminated by the delegates, on their return to their home countries.

ICHCAP should try to foster networking among all those involved in ICH safeguarding in the Asia-Pacific region. At the moment, safeguarding activities are going on in each country, but there is still room for increasing awareness regarding safeguarding activities in other countries in the region. Sometimes we can learn from what others are doing, in order to increase the effectiveness of our own safeguarding activities. Two examples from Indonesia's experience are firstly: the Symposium and Workshop on Inventory in Safeguarding of ICH held in Jakarta on 19th-20th August 2009. Delegates from Japan, People’s Republic of China, and Republic of Korea (Mr. Seoung-Yong Park, Director of ICHCAP) participated and made presentations. Their presentations on the ICH inventory systems in their respective countries provided valuable input in designing Indonesia's new ICH inventory system. Secondly, a bilateral information sharing workshop between Vietnam and Indonesia, held in Seoul on 6th September 2010 in Hanoi. In this half day workshop, 3 speakers from each country spoke. This sharing of information regarding ICH related matters was judged of benefit to both countries. It also gave the visiting delegation a chance to see the institutions engaged in safeguarding ICH in Vietnam.

Community Involvement for Safeguarding of ICH in Indonesia

Indonesia has been engaging communities in safeguarding of ICH through ICH preservation associations existing in the community. Some examples are as follows:

The Indonesian National Wayang Secretariat (SENA WANGI) and the Indonesian Dalangs’ Union (PEPADI) drafted the nomination file of Indonesian Wayang in 2002, and subsequently executed the Action Plan for Safeguarding Indonesian Wayang from 2005-2007, involving wayang communities. The project created books and audiovisual teaching materials and assisted 15 sanggar (traditional schools of wayang puppetry). SENA WANGI created the ASEAN Puppetry Association (APA) in 2006.

DAMARTAJI Foundation drafted the nomination file of Indonesian Kris in 2004, and subsequently prepared the declaration of the Indonesian National Kris Secretariat (SNKI) in 2006. SNKI has since been active in safeguarding Indonesian Kris, through 30 paguyuban associations of kris lovers, who have joined together in SNKI. Activities have executed many of the activities of the Kris safeguarding plan.

Yayasan KADIN Indonesia drafted the nomination file of Indonesian Batik in 2008-2009 and together with the Batik Museum Institute drafted the nomination file of Education and Training in Batik Cultural Heritage for Students in 2009, as well as creating the Indonesian Batik Community Forum (MASBATIK). Other paguyuban associations like Sekar Jagad, Indonesian Batik Foundation etc. have been active in safeguarding Indonesian Batik heritage.

The Angklung Music Society (MMA) and Saung Angklung Udjo both played important roles in the drafting of the nomination file of Indonesian Angklung. MMA has since prepared teaching materials in the form of a book, and Saung Angklung Udjo is active on a daily basis with its community of 1500 angklung artists in performing angklung, safeguarding angklung culture and raising public awareness of angklung.

In summary, Indonesia has engaged communities in safeguarding ICH inter alia, in the following ways:

- By engaging ICH preservation associations in taking part in drafting nomination files for the lists established under the 2003 UNESCO Convention
- By engaging ICH preservation associations in preparing teaching materials for safeguarding ICH especially for transmission to future generations
- By engaging ICH preservation associations in executing action plans to safeguard elements of ICH.
- By inviting community members, including ICH preservation associations, in seminars and capacity building workshops for safeguarding ICH.
• By establishing a “Maestro” programme (similar to the Living Human Treasures programme pioneered and promoted by Korea) to give recognition and assistance to prominent practitioners of elements of ICH, with the intention of facilitating their transmitting ICH to future generations.

• By collecting information from ICH communities and by recording information about ICH communities and community members, especially maestros and teachers, in the inventory of ICH of Indonesia being conducted by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism through its offices throughout Indonesia.
The new system for inventory of ICH established by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism in collaboration with UNESCO Jakarta Office, as outlined in the "Practical Guidebook for Inventory of ICH in Indonesia", uses both manual and digital data entry and recording. The two systems are meant to be complimentary to each other. Data which is recorded and stored on inventory forms, along with documentation materials, is meant to be also entered into a database. And database materials also need to have hardcopy backup.

On 21st December 2010, the Directorate of Tradition of the Ministry of Culture and Tourism held a 1 day seminar on safeguarding of ICH related to inventory and to intellectual property rights. In this seminar, discussions began about how to link up existing community databases of ICH with a central hub of ICH inventory through “metadata” system. There will be further meetings regarding how to implement this. Some of the databases which are on-line with Web 2.0 system are quite extensive. For example, www.budaya-indonesia.org; www.wayang-indonesia.com, etc.

It was noted that in conducting inventory of ICH in Indonesia, intellectual property rights of communities must be respected. Therefore, consent by community members must be obtained for each data entry. Communities may request that certain parts of the data not be made public. This is particularly related to "sacred and secret knowledge", to which access is restricted by customs and traditions.
